

Monthly Review

The trade tensions between the USA and China are still on the way and the parties agreed to sign a "phase 1" agreement, which avoids further retaliations for the time being. New chapters of this story will possibly follow in 2020 creating up and down swings in financial markets. China reinstated its policy of opening to foreign capital inflows, they also tried to reply to the US with tax levies on imported goods, two signs that they are not willing to settle at every cost with the US. Central Bankers are now on hold, and there are increasing worries on a possible economic global slowdown for the months to come, possibly a global recession in the late 2020. Our base scenario is that global equities will remain well supported up until the second quarter of 2020 by monetary stimulus. We are becoming very cautious for the second half of 2020 when a series of negative factors (mainly a pronounced global slowdown) could result in equities corrections of a 10-20% scale. The US represents the reference market for both our equity and fixed income portions of the portfolio, and we keep favouring corporate bonds with maturities within 24 months. Our equity exposure currently fluctuates lower than neutrality (25%-30%).
