

Monthly Review

The fund has managed with a tactical attitude, as our market-timing models suggest probable performance discontinuities in major markets throughout the year. The structural equity exposure of the fund currently ranges from 5% to 20% of the NAV, and we should maintain that prudent stance in the short term.

The reference market for our allocation (equity and fixed income) remains the US, but we like also to extract value from sector or geographical allocation. Incidentally, we also invested in spreads like baskets vs indexes following opportunistic strategies. In light of our expectations for 2020, for which equity markets will be volatile and possibly experience important drawdowns in the central part of the year, our team will structurally implement option strategies on single stocks or equity indexes.

On currency side, we neutralized portfolio by hedging all foreign currency exposures against the Euro.
