

Monthly Review

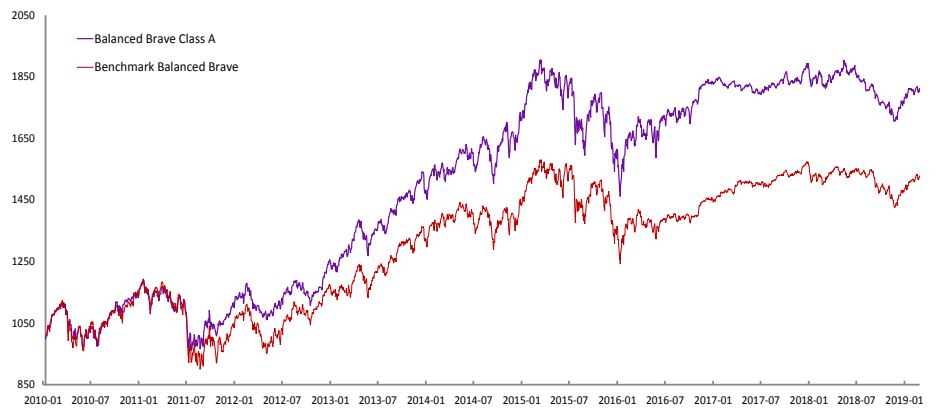

We are concerned about the concomitance of an economic slowdown – evident in Europe – the presence of negative interest rates in most Eurozone economies – that structurally undermines family savings – and the looming European elections – likely to bring about destabilizing forces on the process of gradual harmonization of the continent. Nonetheless, in light of the new dovish ECB stance, we reduced the under-exposure to the European equity markets. The US represents the reference market for both our equity and fixed income portions of the portfolio, and we keep favouring corporate bonds with maturities within 24 months. Additionally, we are adding exposure to selected Chinese companies active in a combination of tech and consumer staples businesses. Our equity exposure currently fluctuates around neutrality (50%), up from an average of 25-30% during the second half of 2018. Although we do not exclude the possibility of reducing in the second quarter, we maintain a constructive view of equity returns for the end of 2019.
